THE CRANE

The biggest crane on earth, it lifts
Two hundred ton more easily
Than I can lift my heavy head:
And when it swings, the whole world shifts,
Or so, at least, it seems to me,
As, day and night, adream I lie
Upon my crippled back in bed,
And watch it up against the sky.

My mother, hunching in her chair,
Day-long, and stitching trousers there—
At three-and-three the dozen pair...
She'd sit all night, and stitch for me,
Her son, if I could only wear...
She never lifts her eyes to see
The big crane swinging through the air.

But, though she has no time to talk,
She always cleans the window-pane,
That I may see it, clear and plain:
And, as I watch it move, I walk
Who never walked in all my days...
And, often, as I dream agaze,
I'm up and out: and it is I
Who swing the crane across the sky.
Right up above the wharf I stand,
And touch a lever with my hand,
To lift a bunch of girders high,
A truck of coal, a field of grain
In sacks, a bundle of big trees,
Or beasts, too frightened in my grip
To wonder at their skiey trip:
And then I let the long arm dip
Without a hitch, without a slip,
To set them safely in the ship
That waits to take them overseas.

My mother little dreams it's I,

Up there, as tiny as a fly,
 Who stand above the biggest crane,
 And swing the ship-loads through the sky;
 While she sits, hunching in her chair,
 Day-long, and stitching trousers there—
 At three-and-three the dozen pair.

And sometimes when it turns me dizzy,
 I lie and watch her, ever busy;
 And wonder at a lot of things
 I never speak to her about:
 I wonder why she never sings
 Like other people on the stair...
 And why, whenever she goes out
 Upon a windy day, the air
 Makes her sad eyes so strangely bright...
 And if the colour of her hair
 Was brown like mine, or always white...
 And why, when through the noise of feet
 Of people passing in the street,
 She hears a dog yelp or sheep bleat,
 She always starts up in her chair,
 And looks before her with strange stare,
 Yet, seeing nothing anywhere:
 Though, right before her, through the sky,
 The biggest crane goes swinging by.

But, it's a lucky day and rare
 When she's the time to talk with me...
 Though, only yesterday, when night
 Shut out, at last, the crane from sight...
 She, in her bed, and thinking I
 Was sleeping—though I watch the sky,
 At times, till it is morning-light,
 And ships are waiting to unload—
 I heard her murmur drowsily:
 "The pit-pat-pattering of feet,
 All night, along the moonlit road...
 A yelp, a whistle, and a bleat...
 The bracken's deep and soft and dry..."

And safe and snug, and no one near...
 The little burn sings low and sweet,
 The little burn sings shrill and clear...
 And loud all night the cock-grouse talks...
 There's naught in heaven or earth to fear...
 The pit-pat-pattering of feet...
 A yelp, a whistle, and a bleat..."
 And then, she started up in bed:
 I felt her staring, as she said:
 "I wonder if he ever hears
 The pit-pat-pattering of sheep,
 Or smells the broken bracken stalks...
 While she is lying sound-asleep
 Beside him ... after all these years—
 Just nineteen years, this very night—
 Remembering? ... and now, his son,
 A man ... and never stood upright!"

And then, I heard a sound of tears;
 But dared not speak, or let her know
 I'd caught a single whisper, though
 I wondered long what she had done
 That she should fear the pattering feet:
 And when those queer words in the night
 Had fretted me half-dead with fright,
 And set my throbbing head abeat...
 Out of the darkness, suddenly,
 The crane's long arm swung over me,
 Among the stars, high overhead...
 And then it dipped, and clutched my bed
 And I had not a breath to cry,
 Before it swung me through the sky,
 Above the sleeping city high,
 Where blinding stars went blazing by...

My mother, hunching in her chair,
 Day-long, and stitching trousers there,
 At three-and-three the dozen pair,
 With quiet eyes and smooth white hair...
 You'd little think a yelp or bleat

Could start her; or that she was weeping
So sorely, when she thought me sleeping.
She never tells me why she fears
The pit-pat-pattering of feet
All night along the moonlit road...
Or what's the wrong that she has done...
I wonder if 'twould bring her tears,
If she could know that I, her son—
A man, who never stood upright,
But all the livelong day must lie,
And watch, beyond the window-pane
The swaying of the biggest crane—
That I, within its clutch, last night,
Went whirling through the starry sky.

THE LIGHTHOUSE

Just as my watch was done, the fog had lifted;
And we could see the flashing of our light;
And see, once more, the reef beyond the Head,
O'er which, six days and nights, the mist had drifted—
Six days and nights in thick white mist had drifted,
Until it seemed all time to mist had drifted,
And day and night were but one blind white night.

But on the seventh midnight the wind shifted:
And I was glad to tumble into bed,
Thankful to hear no more the blaring horn,
That ceaselessly had sounded, night and morn,
With moaning echoes through the mist, to warn
The blind, bewildered ships at sea:
Yet, though as tired as any dog,
I lay awhile, and seemed to feel
Fog lying on my eyes still heavily;
And still, the horn unceasingly
Sang through my head, till gradually

Through night's strange stillness, over me
 Sweet sleep began to steal,
 Sleep, blind and thick and fleecy as the fog.

For all I knew, I might have slept
 A moment, or eternity;
 When, startled by a crash,
 I waked to find I'd leapt
 Upright on the floor:
 And stood there, listening to the smash
 Of falling glass ... and then a thud
 Of something heavy tumbling
 Into the next room...
 A pad of naked feet...
 A moan ... a sound of stumbling ...
 A heavier thud ... and then no more.
 And I stood shivering in the gloom,
 With creeping flesh, and tingling blood,
 Until I gave myself a shake
 To bring my wits more wide awake;
 And lit a lantern, and flung wide the door.
 Half-dazed, and dazzled by the light,
 At first it seemed I'd only find
 A broken pane, a flapping blind:
 But when I raised the lantern o'er my head,
 I saw a naked boy upon the bed,
 Who crouched and shuddered on the folded sheet;
 And, on his face, before my feet,
 A naked man, who lay as if quite dead,
 Though on his broken knuckles blood was red:
 And all my wits awakened at the sight.

I set the lantern down; and took the child,
 Who looked at me, with piteous eyes and wild;
 And chafed his chill, wet body, till it glowed;
 And forcing spirit 'twixt his chattering teeth,
 I tucked him snugly in beneath
 The blankets, and soon left him warmly stowed:
 And stooped to tend the man, who lay
 Still senseless on the floor.

I turned him off his face;
And laid him on the other bed;
And washed and stanch'd his wound.
And yet for all that I could do,
I could not bring him to,
Or see a trace
Of life returning to that heavy head.

It seem'd he'd swoon'd,
When through the window he'd made way,
Just having strength to lay
The boy in safety. Still as death,
He lay, without a breath:
And seeing I could do no more
To help him in the fight for life;
I turned again to tend the lad;
And, as I look'd on him, was glad
To find him sleeping quietly.

So, fetching fuel, I lit a fire:
And quickly had as big a blaze
As any housewife could desire:
Then, 'twixt the beds, I set a chair,
That I might watch until they stirr'd:
And as I saw them lying there—
The sleeping boy, and him who lay
In that strange stiller sleep, 'twas plain
That they were son and father, now
I'd time to look, and wonder how,
In such a desperate plight,
Without a stitch or rag,
They'd taken refuge from the night.
And, as I wonder'd drowsily,
It seem'd yet queerer and more queer;
For round the Head the rocks are sheer,
With scarce a foothold for a bird;
And it seem'd quite beyond belief
That any wreck'd upon the reef,
Could swim ashore, and scale the crag,
By daylight, let alone by night

But, they who live beside the sea
 Know naught's too wonderful to be:
 And, as I sat, and heard
 The quiet breathing of the child,
 Great weariness came over me;
 And, in a kind of daze,
 I watched the blaze,
 With nodding head:
 And must have slept, for, presently,
 I found the man was sitting up in bed:
 And talking to himself, with wide, unseeing eyes.
 At first, I hardly made out what he said:
 But soon his voice, so hoarse and wild,
 Grew calm: and, straining, I could hear
 The broken words, that came with many sighs.

"Yes, lad: she's going: but, there's naught to fear:
 For I can swim: and tow you in the belt.
 Come, let's join hands together; and leap clear...
 Aye, son: it's dark and cold ... but you have felt
 The cold and dark before...
 And you should scorn...
 And we must be near shore...
 For, hark the horn!
 Think of your mother, and your home, and leap...
 She thinks of us, lad, waking or asleep...
 You would not leave her lonely?
 Nay! ... then ... go! ...
 Well done, lad! ... Nay! I'm here...
 Aye, son, it's cold: but you're too big to fear.
 Now then, you're snug: I've got you safe in tow:
 The worst is over: and we've only
 To make for land ... we've naught ... to do ... but steer...
 But steer ... but steer..."

He paused; and sank down in the bed, quite done:
 And lay a moment silent, while his son
 Still slumbered in the other bed,
 And on his quiet face the firelight shone.
 Then, once again, the father raised his head,

And rambled on...
 "Say, lad, what cheer?
 I thought you'd dropped asleep: but you're all right.
 We'll rest a moment ... I'm quite out of breath...
 It's further than ... Nay, son! there's naught to fear...
 The land must be quite near...
 The horn is loud enough!
 Aye, lad, it's cold:
 But, you're too old
 To cry for cold.
 Now ... keep ... tight hold:
 And we'll be off again.
 I've got my breath..."

He sank, once more, as still as death,
 With hands that clutched the counterpane:
 But still the boy was sleeping quietly.
 And then, the father sat up suddenly:
 And cried: "See! See!
 The land! the land!
 It's near ... I touch it with my hand."
 And now, "Oh God!" he moaned.
 Small wonder, when he saw what lay before—
 The black, unbroken crags, so grim and high,
 That must have seemed to him to soar
 Sheer from the sea's edge to the sky.
 But, soon, he plucked up heart, once more:
 "We're safe, lad—safe ashore!
 A narrow ledge, but land, firm land.
 We'll soon be high and dry.
 Nay, son: we can't stay here:
 The waves would have us back;
 Or we should perish of the cold.
 Come, lad: there's naught to fear...
 You must be brave and bold.
 Perhaps, we'll strike a track.
 Aye, son: it's steep, and black,
 And slimy to the hold:
 But we must climb, and see! the mist is gone.
 The stars are shining clear...

Think, son, your mother's at the top;
 And you'll be up in no time. See, that star,
 The brightest star that ever shone,
 Just think it's she who watches you;
 And knows that you'll be brave and true.
 Come, lad: we may not stop...
 Or, else, the cold...
 Give me your hand...
 Your foot there, now ... just room to stand.
 It cannot be so far...
 We'll soon be up ... this work should make us warm.
 Thank God, it's not a storm,
 Or we should scarce ... your foot, here, firm...
 Nay, lad! you must not squirm.
 Come, be a man: you shall not fall:
 I'll hold you tight.
 There: now, you are my own son, after all!
 Your mother, lad,
 Her star burns bright...
 And we're already half-way up the height...
 Your mother will be glad,
 Aye, she'll be glad to hear
 Of her brave boy who had no fear.

Your foot ... your hand ... 'twas but a bird
 You startled out of bed:
 'Twould think it queer
 To wake up, suddenly, and see your head!
 And, when you stirred...
 Nay! steady, lad!
 Or you will send your dad...
 Your hand ... your foot ... we'll rest upon this ledge...
 Why, son, we're at the top! I feel the edge,
 And grass, soft, dewy grass!
 Let go, one moment; and I'll draw you up...
 Now, lad! ... Thank God! that's past...
 And you are safe, at last:
 You're safe, you're safe ... and now, my precious lass
 Will see her son, her little son, again.

I never thought to reach the top, to-night.
 God! What a height!
 Nay! but you must not look: 'twould turn your head
 And we must not stand shivering here...
 And see ... a flashing light...
 It's sweeping towards us: and now you stand bright.
 Ah, your poor, bleeding hands and feet!
 My little son, my sweet!
 There's nothing more to fear.
 A lighthouse, lad! And we must make for it.
 You're tired; I'll carry you a bit.
 Nay, son: 'twill warm me up...
 And there will be a fire and bed;
 And ev'n perhaps a cup
 Of something hot to drink,
 And something good to eat.
 And think, son, only think,
 Your home ... and mother ... once again."

Once more, the weary head
 Sank back upon the bed:
 And, for a while, he hardly stirred;
 But only muttered, now and then,
 A broken word,
 As though to cheer
 His son, who still slept quietly,
 Upon the other side of me.

And then, my blood ran cold to hear
 A sudden cry of fear:
 "My son! My son!
 Ah, God, he's done!
 I thought I'd laid him on the bed...
 I've laid him on white mist, instead:
 He's fallen sheer..."

Then, I sprang up; and cried: "Your son is here!"
 And, taking up the sleeping boy,
 I bore him to his father's arms:
 And, as he nestled to his breast,

Kind life came back to those wild eyes;
 And filled them with deep joy:
 And, free of all alarms,
 The son and father lay,
 Together, in sweet rest,
 While through the window stole the strange, clear light of day.

THE MONEY

They found her cold upon the bed.
 The cause of death, the doctor said,
 Was nothing save the lack of bread.

Her clothes were but a sorry rag
 That barely hid the nakedness
 Of her poor body's piteous wreck:
 Yet, when they stripped her of her dress,
 They found she was not penniless;
 For, in a little silken bag,
 Tied with red ribbon round her neck,
 Was four-pound-seventeen-and-five.

"It seems a strange and shameful thing
 That she should starve herself to death,
 While she'd the means to keep alive.
 Why, such a sum would keep the breath
 Within her body till she'd found
 A livelihood; and it would bring...
 But, there is very little doubt
 She'd set her heart upon a grand
 And foolish funeral—for the pride
 Of poor folk, who can understand!—
 And so, because she was too proud
 To meet death penniless, she died."

And talking, talking, they trooped out:

And, as they went, I turned about
 To look upon her in her shroud;
 And saw again the quiet face
 That filled with light that shameful place,
 Touched with the tender, youthful grace
 Death brings the broken and outworn
 To comfort kind hearts left to mourn.

And as I stood, the sum they'd found
 Rang with a queer, familiar ring
 Of some uncouth, uncanny sound
 Heard in dark ages underground;
 And "four-pound-seventeen-and-five"
 Through all my body seemed to sing,
 Without recalling anything
 To help me, strive as I might strive.

But, as I stumbled down the stairs
 Into the alley's gloom and stench—
 A whiff of burning oil
 That took me unawares—
 And I knew all there was to tell.
 And, though the rain in torrents fell,
 I walked on, heedless, through the drench
 And, all the while, I seemed to sit
 Upon a tub in Lancel pit;
 And in the candle-light to see
 John Askerton, a "deputy,"
 Who paused awhile to talk with me,
 His kind face glistening black with toil.

"'Twas here I found him dead, beside
 His engine. All the other men
 Were up—for things were slack just then—
 And I'd one foot upon the cage;
 When, all at once, I caught the smell
 Of burning. Even as I turned
 To see what it could be that burned,
 The seam behind was choked with stife.
 And so I dropped on hands and knees,

And crawled along the gallery,
 Beneath the smoke, that I might see
 What ailed: and as I crept, half-blind,
 With smarting eyes, and breath awheeze,
 I scarcely knew what I should find.
 At times, I thought I'd never know...
 And 'twas already quite an age
 Since I set out ... I felt as though
 I had been crawling all my life
 Beneath the stifling cloud of smoke
 That clung about me fit to choke:
 And when, at last, I'd struggled here,
 'Twas long ere I could see things clear...
 That he was lying here ... and he
 Was dead ... and burning like a tree...
 A tree-trunk soaked in oil ... No doubt,
 The engine had caught fire, somehow;
 And when he tried to put it out,
 His greasy clothes had caught ... and now
 As fine a lad as you could see...
 And such a lad for singing ... I
 Had heard him when I worked hard by;
 And often quiet I would sit
 To hear him, singing in the pit,
 As though his heart knew naught of it,
 And life was nothing but a song.

"He'd not been working with us long:
 And little of his ways I knew:
 But, when I'd got him up, at last;
 And he was lying in the shed,
 The sweet song silent in his breast;
 And there was nothing more to do:
 The notion came into my head
 That he had always been well-dressed;
 And seemed a neat and thrifty lad...
 And lived in lodgings ... so, maybe,
 Would carry on him all he had.
 So, back into the cage I stepped:
 And, when it reached the bottom, crept

Along the gallery again
 And, in the dust where he had lain,
 I rummaged, until I found all
 That from his burning pockets fell.
 And when it seemed there was no more,
 I thought how, happy and alive,
 And recking naught what might befall,
 He, too, for all that I could tell,
 Just where I stood, had reckoned o'er
 That four-pound-seventeen-and-five.

"Aye, like enough ... for soon we heard
 That in a week he'd looked to wed.
 He'd meant to give the girl that night
 The money to buy furniture.
 She came, and watched till morning-light
 Beside the body in the shed:
 Then rose: and took, without a word,
 The money he had left for her."

* * * * *

Then, as I wandered through the rain,
 I seemed to stand in awe again
 Beside that lonely garret-bed.
 And it was good to think the dead
 Had known the wealth she would not spend
 To keep a little while alive—
 His four-pound-seventeen-and-five—
 Would buy her houserom in the end.

THE SNOW

Just as the school came out,
 The first white flakes were drifting round about:
 And all the children shouted with delight

To see such flakes, so big, so white,
 Tumbling from a cloud so black,
 And whirling helter-skelter
 Across the windy moor:
 And as they saw the light flakes race,
 Started off in headlong chase,
 Swooping on them with a shout,
 When they seemed to drop for shelter
 Underneath the dry-stone wall.

And then the master, at the schoolhouse door,
 Called out to them to hurry home, before
 The storm should come on worse: and watched till all
 Had started off by road or moorland track:
 When, turning to his wife, he said:
 It looked like dirty weather overhead:
 He thought 'twould be a heavy fall,
 And threatened for a roughish night;
 But they would all reach home in broad daylight.
 'Twas early, yet; he'd let the school out soon;
 As it had looked so lowering since forenoon;
 And many had a goodish step to go:
 And it was but ill-travelling in the snow.
 Then by the fire he settled down to read;
 And to the weather paid no further heed.

And, on their road home, full three miles away,
 John, and his little sister, Janey, started;
 And, at the setting out, were happy-hearted
 To be let loose into a world so gay,
 With jolly winds and frisking flakes at play
 That flicked your cheek, and whistled in your teeth:
 And now hard on each other's heels they darted
 To catch a flake that floated like a feather,
 Then dropt to nestle in a clump of heather;
 And often tumbled both together
 Into a deep delicious bed
 Of brown and springy heath.
 But, when the sky grew blacker overhead,
 As if it were the coming on of night,

And every little hill, well-known to sight,
 Looked big and strange in its new fleece of white;
 And as yet faster and more thickly
 The big flakes fell,
 To John the thought came that it might be well
 To hurry home; so, striding on before,
 He set a steady face across the moor;
 And called to Janey she must come more quickly.

The wind soon dropped: and fine and dry the snow
 Came whispering down about them, as they trudged
 And, when they'd travelled for a mile or so,
 They found it ankle-deep: for here the storm
 Had started long before it reached the school:
 And, as he felt the dry flakes tingling warm
 Upon his cheek, and set him all aglow,
 John in his manly pride, a little grudged
 That now and then he had to wait awhile
 For Janey, lagging like a little fool:
 But, when they'd covered near another mile
 Through that bewildering white without a sound,
 Save rustling, rustling, rustling all around;
 And all his well-known world, so queer and dim,
 He waited until she caught up to him;
 And felt quite glad that he was not alone.

And when they reached the low, half-buried stone
 That marked where some old shepherd had been found,
 Lost in the snow in seeking his lost sheep,
 One wild March night, full forty years ago,
 He wished, and wished, that they were safe and sound
 In their own house: and as the snow got deeper,
 And every little bank seemed strangely steeper,
 He thought, and thought of that lost sleeper;
 And saw him lying in the snow,
 Till every fleecy clump of heath
 Seemed to shroud a man beneath;
 And now his blood went hot and cold
 Through very fear of that dread sight;
 And then he felt that, in sheer fright,

He must take to his heels in flight,
 He cared not whither, so that it might be
 Where there were no more bundles, cold and white,
 Like sheeted bodies, plain to see.
 And, all on edge, he turned to chide
 His sister, dragging at his side:
 But, when he found that she was crying,
 Because her feet and hands were cold,
 He quite forgot to scold:
 And spoke kind words of cheer to her:
 And saw no more dead shepherds lying
 In any snowy clump of heather.
 So, hand in hand, they trudged together,
 Through that strange world of drifting gloam,
 Sharp-set and longing sore for home.

And John remembered how that morning,
 When they set out the sky was blue—
 Clean, cloudless blue; and gave no warning;
 And how through air as clear as glass,
 The far-off hills he knew
 Looked strangely near; and glittered brightly;
 Each sprig of heath and blade of grass
 In the cold wind blowing lightly,
 Each clump of green and crimson moss
 Sparkling in the wintry sun.

But now, as they toiled home, across
 These unfamiliar fells, nigh done,
 The wind again began to blow;
 And thicker, thicker fell the snow:
 Till Janey sank, too numb to stir:
 When John stooped down, and lifted her,
 To carry her upon his back.
 And then his head began to tire:
 And soon he seemed to lose the track...
 And now the world was all afire...
 Now dazzling white, now dazzling black...
 And then, through some strange land of light,
 Where clouds of butterflies all white,

Fluttered and flickered all about,
 Dancing ever in and out,
 He wandered, blinded by white wings,
 That rustled, rustled in his ears
 With cold, uncanny whisperings...
 And then it seemed his bones must crack
 With that dead weight upon his back...
 When, on his cheek, he felt warm tears,
 And a cold tangle of wet hair;
 And knew 'twas Janey weeping there:
 And, taking heart, he stumbled on,
 While in his breast the hearthlight shone:
 And it was all of his desire
 To sit once more before the fire;
 And feel the friendly glowing heat.
 But, as he strove with fumbling feet,
 It seemed that he would never find
 Again that cheery hearth and kind;
 But wander ever, bent and blind,
 Beneath his burden through the night
 Of dreadful, spangly, whispering white.

The wind rose; and the dry snow drifted
 In little eddies round the track:
 And when, at last, the dark cloud rifted,
 He saw a strange lough, lying cold and black,
 'Mid unknown, ghostly hills; and knew
 That they were lost: and once again,
 The snow closed in: and swept from view
 The dead black water and strange fells.

But still he struggled on: and then,
 When he seemed climbing up an endless steep
 And ever slipping, sliding back,
 With ankles aching like to crack,
 And only longed for sleep;
 He heard a tinkling sound of bells,
 That kept on ringing, ringing, ringing,
 Until his dizzy head was singing;
 And he could think of nothing else:

And then it seemed the weight was lifted
 From off his back; and on the ground
 His sister stood, while, all around
 Were giants clad in coats of wool,
 With big, curled horns, and queer black faces,
 Who bobbed and curtsied in their places,
 With blazing eyes and strange grimaces;
 But never made a sound;
 Then nearly shook themselves to pieces,
 Shedding round a smell of warm, wet fleeces:
 Then one it seemed as if he knew,
 Looking like the old lame ewe,
 Began to bite his coat, and pull
 Till he could hardly stand: its eyes
 Glowing to a monstrous size,
 Till they were like a lantern light
 Burning brightly through the night...
 When someone stooped from out the sky,
 To rescue him; and set him high:
 And he was riding, snug and warm,
 In some king's chariot through the storm,
 Without a sound of wheel or hoof—
 In some king's chariot, filled with straw,
 And he would nevermore be cold...

And then with wondering eyes he saw
 Deep caverns of pure burning gold;
 And knew himself in fairyland:
 But when he stretched an eager hand
 To touch the glowing walls, he felt
 A queer warm puff, as though of fire...
 And suddenly he smelt
 The reek of peat; and looking higher,
 He saw the old, black porridge-kettle,
 Hanging from the cavern roof,
 Hanging on its own black crook:
 And he was lying on the settle,
 While by his side,
 With tender look,
 His mother knelt;

And he had only one desire
 In all the world; and 'twas to fling
 His arms about her neck, and hide
 His happy tears upon her breast.
 And as to her he closely pressed,
 He heard his merry father sing:
 "There was a silly sleepyhead,
 Who thought he'd like to go to bed:
 So in a stell he went to sleep,
 And snored among the other sheep."

And then his mother gently said:
 "Nay, father: do not tease him now:
 He's quite worn out: and needs a deal
 Of quiet sleep: and, after all,
 He brought his sister safe from school."
 And now he felt her warm tears fall
 Upon his cheek: and thrilled to feel
 His father's hand on his hot brow,
 And hear him say: "The lad's no fool."

RED FOX

I hated him ... his beard was red...
 Red fox, red thief! ... Ah, God, that she—
 She with the proud and lifted head
 That never stooped to glance at me—
 So fair and fancy-free, should wed
 A slinking dog-fox such as he!

Was it last night I hated him?
 Last night? It seems an age ago...
 At whiles, my mind comes over dim
 As if God's breath ... yet, ever slow
 And dull, too dull she ... limb from limb
 Last night I could have torn him, so!

My lonely bed was fire and ice.
 I could not sleep. I could not lie.
 I shut my hot eyes once or twice...
 And saw a red fox slinking by...
 A red dog-fox that turned back thrice
 To mock me with a merry eye.

And so I rose to pace the floor...
 And, ere I knew, my clothes were on...
 And as I stood outside the door,
 Cold in the Summer moonlight shone
 The gleaming barrel ... and no more
 I feared the fox, for fear was one.

"The best of friends," I said, "must part..."
 "The best of friends must part," I said:
 And like the creaking of a cart
 The words went wheeling through my head.
 "The best of friends..." and, in my heart,
 Red fox, already lying dead!

I took the trackway through the wood.
 Red fox had sought a woodland den,
 When she ... when she ... but, 'twas not good
 To think too much on her just then...
 The woman must beware, who stood
 Between two stark and fearless men.

The pathway took a sudden turn...
 And in a trice my steps were stayed.
 Before me, in the moonlit fern,
 A young dog-fox and vixen played
 With their red cubs beside the burn...
 And I stood trembling and afraid.

They frolicked in the warm moonlight—
 A scuffling heap of heads and heels...
 A rascal rush ... a playful bite...
 A scuttling brush, and frightened squeals...
 A flash of teeth ... a show of fight...

Then lively as a bunch of eels

Once more they gambolled in the brake,
 And tumbled headlong in the stream,
 Then scrambled gasping out to shake
 Their sleek, wet, furry coats a gleam.
 I watched them, fearful and awake...
 I watched them, hateless and adream.

The dog-fox gave a bark, and then
 All ran to him: and, full of pride,
 He took the trackway up the glen,
 His family trotting by his side:
 The young cubs nosing for the den,
 With trailing brushes, sleepy-eyed.

And then it seems I must have slept—
 Dropt dead asleep ... dropt dead outworn.
 I wakened, as the first gleam crept
 Among the fern, and it was morn...
 God's eye about their home had kept
 Good watch, the night her son was born.

THE OVENS

He trailed along the cinder-track
 Beside the sleek canal, whose black
 Cold, slinking waters shivered back
 Each frosty spark of starry light;
 And each star pricked, an icy pin,
 Through his old jacket worn and thin:
 The raw wind rasped his shrinking skin
 As if stark naked to its bite;
 Yet, cutting through him like a knife,
 It would not cut the thread of life;
 But only turned his feet to stones

With red-hot soles, that weighed like lead
 In his old broken boots. His head,
 Sunk low upon his sunken chest,
 Was but a burning, icy ache
 That strained a skull which would not break
 To let him tumble down to rest.
 He felt the cold stars in his bones:
 And only wished that he were dead,
 With no curst searching wind to shred
 The very flesh from off his bones—
 No wind to whistle through his bones,
 His naked, icy, burning bones:
 When, looking up, he saw, ahead,
 The far coke-ovens' glowing light
 That burnt a red hole in the night.
 And but to snooze beside that fire
 Was all the heaven of his desire...
 To tread no more this cursed track
 Of crunching cinders, through a black
 And blasted world of cinder-heaps,
 Beside a sleek canal that creeps
 Like crawling ice through every bone,
 Beneath the cruel stars, alone
 With this hell-raking wind that sets
 The cold teeth rattling castanets...
 Yea, heaven, indeed, that core of red
 In night's black heart that seemed quite dead.
 Though still far off, the crimson glow
 Through his chilled veins began to flow,
 And fill his shrivelled heart with heat;
 And, as he dragged his senseless feet,
 That lagged as though to hold him back
 In cold, eternal hell of black,
 With heaven before him, blazing red,
 The set eyes staring in his head
 Were held by spell of fire quite blind
 To that black world that fell behind,
 A cindery wilderness of death;
 As he drew slowly near and nearer,
 And saw the ovens glowing clearer—

Low-domed and humming hives of heat—
And felt the blast of burning breath
That quivered from each white-hot brick:
Till, blinded by the blaze, and sick
He dropped into a welcome seat
Of warm white ashes, sinking low
To soak his body in the glow
That shot him through with prickling pain,
An eager agony of fire,
Delicious after the cold ache,
And scorched his tingling, frosted skin.
Then gradually the anguish passed;
And blissfully he lay, at last,
Without an unfulfilled desire,
His grateful body drinking in
Warm, blessed, snug forgetfulness.
And yet, with staring eyes awake,
As though no drench of heat could slake
His thirst for fire, he watched a red
Hot eye that burned within a chink
Between the bricks: while overhead
The quivering stream of hot, gold air
Surged up to quench the cold starlight.
His brain, too numbed and dull to think
Throughout the day, in that fierce glare
Awoke, at last, with startled stare
Of pitiless, insistent sight
That stript the stark, mean, bitter strife
Of his poor, broken, wasted life,
Crippled from birth, and struggling on,
The last, least shred of hope long gone,
To some unknown, black, bitter end.
But, even as he looked, his brain
Sank back to sightless sloth again;
Then, all at once, he seemed to choke;
And knew it was the stealthy stife
And deadly fume of burning coke
That filled his lungs, and seemed to soak
Through every pore, until the blood
Grew thick and heavy in his veins,

And he could scarcely draw a breath.
He lay, and murmured drowsily,
With closing eyes: "If this be death,
It's snug and easy ... let it come...
For life is cold and hard ... the flood
Is rising with the heavy rains
That pour and pour ... that damned old drum,
Why ever can't they let it be...
Beat-beating, beating, beating, beat..."
Then, suddenly, he sat upright,
For, close behind him in the night,
He heard a breathing loud and deep,
And caught a whiff of burning leather.
He shook himself alive, and turned;
And on a heap of ashes white,
O'ercome by the full blast of heat,
Where fieriest the dread blaze burned,
He saw a young girl stretched in sleep.
He sat awhile with heavy gaze
Fixed on her in a dull amaze,
Until he saw her scorched boots smoking:
Then, whispering huskily: "She's dying,
While I look on and watch her choking!"
He roused: and pulled himself together:
And rose, and went where she was lying:
And, bending o'er the senseless lass,
In his weak arms he lifted her;
And bore her out beyond the glare,
Beyond the stealthy, stifling gas,
Into the fresh and eager air:
And laid her gently on the ground
Beneath the cold and starry sky:
And did his best to bring her round;
Though still, for all that he could try,
She seemed, with each deep-labouring breath
Just brought up on the brink of death.
He sought, and found an icy pool,
Though he had but a cap to fill,
And bathed her hands and face, until
The troubled breath was quieter,

And her flushed forehead felt quite cool:
And then he saw an eyelid stir;
And shivering she sat up at last,
And looked about her sullenly.
"I'm cold ... I'm mortal cold," she said:
"What call had you to waken me?
I was so warm and happy, dead...
And still those staring stars!" Her head
Dropt in her hands: and thick and fast
The tears came with a heavy sobbing.
He stood quite helpless while she cried;
And watched her shaken bosom throbbing
With passionate, wild, weak distress,
Till it was spent. And then she dried
Her eyes upon her singed black dress;
Looked up, and saw him standing there,
Wondering, and more than half-afraid.
But now, the nipping, hungry air
Took hold of her, and struck fear dead.
She only felt the starving sting
That must, at any price, be stayed;
And cried out: "I am famishing!"
Then from his pocket he took bread
That he had been too weak and sick
To eat o'ernight: and eager-eyed,
She took it timidly; and said:
"I have not tasted food two days."
And, as he waited by her side,
He watched her with a quiet gaze;
And saw her munch the broken crust
So gladly, seated in the dust
Of that black desert's bitter night,
Beneath the freezing stars, so white
And hunger-pinched: and at the sight
Keen pity touched him to the quick;
Although he never said a word,
Till she had finished every crumb.
And then he led her to a seat
A little closer to the heat,
But well beyond the deadly stife.

And in the ashes, side by side,
 They sat together, dazed and dumb,
 With eyes upon the ovens' glare,
 Each looking nakedly on life.
 And then, at length, she sighed, and stirred,
 Still staring deep and dreamy-eyed
 Into the whitening, steady glow.
 With jerky, broken words and slow,
 And biting at her finger-ends,
 She talked at last: and spoke out all
 Quite open-heartedly, as though
 There were not any stranger there—
 The fire and he, both bosom-friends.
 She'd left her home three months ago—
 She, country-born and country-bred,
 Had got the notion in her head
 That she'd like city-service best...
 And so no country place could please...
 And she had worried without rest
 Until, at last, she got her ends;
 And, wiser than her folk and friends,
 She left her home among the trees...
 The trees grew thick for miles about
 Her father's house ... the forest spread
 As far as ever you could see...
 And it was green, in Summer, green...
 Since she had left her home, she'd seen
 No greenness could compare with it...
 And everything was fresh and clean,
 And not all smutched and smirched with smoke
 They burned no sooty coal and coke,
 But only wood-logs, ash and oak...
 And by the fire at night they'd sit...
 Ah! wouldn't it be rare and good
 To smell the sappy, sizzling wood,
 Once more; and listen to the stream
 That runs just by the garden-gate...
 And often, in a Winter spate,
 She'd wakened from a troubled dream,
 And lain in bed, and heard it roar;

And quaked to hear it, as a child...
 It seemed so angry, and so wild—
 Just mad to sweep the house away!
 And now, it was three months or more
 Since she had heard it, on the day...
 The day she left ... and Michael stood...
 He was a woodman, too, and he
 Worked with her father in the wood...
 And wanted her, she knew ... but she
 Was proud, and thought herself too good
 To marry any country lad...
 'Twas queer to think she'd once been proud—
 And such a little while ago—
 A beggar, wolfing crusts! ... The pride
 That made her quit her countryside
 Soon left her stranded in the crowd...
 And precious little pride she had
 To keep her warm these freezing days
 Since she had fled the city-ways
 To walk back home ... aye! home again:
 For, in the town, she'd tried in vain,
 For honest work to earn her bread...
 At one place, they'd nigh slaved her dead,
 And starved her, too; and, when she left,
 Had cheated her of half her wage:
 But she'd no means to stop the theft...
 And she'd had no more work to do...
 Two months since, now ... it seemed an age!
 How she had lived, she scarcely knew...
 And still, poor fool, too proud to write
 To home for help, until, at length,
 She'd not a penny for a bite,
 Or pride enough to clothe her back...
 So, she was tramping home, too poor
 To pay the train-fare ... she'd the strength,
 If she'd the food ... but that hard track,
 And that cold, cruel, bitter night
 Had taken all the heart from her...
 If Michael knew, she felt quite sure...
 For she would rather drop stone-dead

Than live as some ... if she had cared
 To feed upon the devil's bread,
 She could have earned it easily...
 She'd pride enough to starve instead,
 Aye, starve, than fare as some girls fared...
 But, that was all behind ... and she
 Was going home ... and yet, maybe,
 If they'd a home like hers, they, too,
 Would be too proud ... she only knew
 The thought of home had kept her straight,
 And saved her ere it was too late.
 She'd soon be home again...

And now

She sat with hand upon her brow;
 And did not speak again nor stir.

And, as he heard her words, his gaze
 Still set upon the steady glare,
 His thoughts turned back to city-ways:
 And he remembered common sights
 That he had seen in city nights:
 And, once again, in early June,
 He wandered through the midnight street;
 And heard those ever-pacing feet
 Of young girls, children yet in years,
 With gaudy ribbons in their hair,
 And shameless fevered eyes astare,
 And slack lips set in brazen leers,
 Who walked the pavements of despair,
 Beneath the fair full Summer moon...
 Shadowed by worn-out, wizened hags,
 With claw-hands clutching filthy rags
 About old bosoms, shrunk and thin,
 And mouths aler without a tooth,
 Who dogged them, cursing their sleek youth
 That filched their custom and their bread...
 Then, in a reek of hot gas light,
 He stood where, through the Summer night,
 Half-dozing in the stifling air,
 The greasy landlord, fat with sin,

Sat, lolling in his easy chair,
 Just half-way up the brothel stair,
 To tax the earnings they brought in,
 And hearken for the policeman's tread...

Then, shuddering back from that foul place
 And turning from the ovens' glare,
 He looked into her dreaming face;
 And saw green, sunlit woodlands there,
 And waters flashing in between
 Low-drooping boughs of Summer green.

And as he looked, still in a dream
 She murmured: "Michael would, she knew...
 Though she'd been foolish ... he was true,
 As true as steel, and fond of her...
 And then she sat with eyes a gleam
 In dreaming silence, till the stir
 Of cold dawn shivered through the air:
 When, twisting up her tumbled hair,
 She rose; and said, she must be gone.
 Though she'd still far to go, the day
 Would see her well upon her way...
 And she had best be jogging on,
 While she'd the strength ... and so, "Good-bye."

And as, beneath the paling sky,
 He trudged again the cinder-track
 That stretched before him, dead and black,
 He muttered: "It's a chance the light
 Has found me living still ... and she—
 She, too ... and Michael ... and through me
 God knows whom I may wake to-night."

Creating the works from print editions not protected by U.S. copyright law means that no one owns a United States copyright in these works, so the Foundation (and you!) can copy and distribute it in the United States without permission and without paying copyright royalties. Special rules, set forth in the General Terms of Use part of this license, apply to copying and distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works to protect the Project Gutenberg™ concept and trademark. Project Gutenberg is a registered trademark, and may not be used if you charge for the eBooks, unless you receive specific permission. If you do not charge anything for copies of this eBook, complying with the rules is very easy. You may use this eBook for nearly any purpose such as creation of derivative works, reports, performances and research. They may be modified and printed and given away – you may do practically anything in the United States with eBooks not protected by U.S. copyright law. Redistribution is subject to the trademark license, especially commercial redistribution.

The Full Project Gutenberg License

Please read this before you distribute or use this work.

To protect the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting the free distribution of electronic works, by using or distributing this work (or any other work associated in any way with the phrase “Project Gutenberg”), you agree to comply with all the terms of the Full Project Gutenberg™ License available with this file or online at <https://www.gutenberg.org/license>.

Section 1. General Terms of Use & Redistributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works

1.A. By reading or using any part of this Project Gutenberg™ electronic work, you indicate that you have read, understand, agree to and accept all the terms of this license and intellectual property (trademark/copyright) agreement. If you do not agree to abide by all the terms of this agreement, you must cease using and return or destroy all copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in your possession. If you paid a fee for obtaining a copy of or access to a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work and you do not agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement, you may obtain a refund from the person or entity to whom you paid the fee as set forth in paragraph 1.E.8.

1.B. “Project Gutenberg” is a registered trademark. It may only be used on or associated in any way with an electronic work by people who agree to be bound by the terms of this agreement. There are a few things that you can do with most Project Gutenberg™ electronic works even without complying with the full terms of this agreement. See paragraph 1.C below. There are a lot of things you can do with Project Gutenberg™ electronic works if you follow the terms of this agreement and help preserve free future access to Project Gutenberg™ electronic works. See paragraph 1.E below.

1.C. The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation (“the Foundation” or PGLAF), owns a compilation copyright in the collection of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works. Nearly all the individual works in the collection are in the public domain in the United States. If an individual work is unprotected by copyright law in the United States and you are located in the United States, we do not claim a right to prevent you from copying, distributing, performing, displaying or creating derivative works based on the work as long as all references to Project Gutenberg are removed. Of course, we hope that you will support the Project Gutenberg™ mission of promoting free access to electronic works by freely sharing Project Gutenberg™ works in compliance with the terms of this agreement for keeping the Project Gutenberg™ name associated with the work. You can easily comply with the terms of this agreement by keeping this work in the same format with its attached full Project Gutenberg™ License when you share it without charge with others.

1.D. The copyright laws of the place where you are located also govern what you can do with this work. Copyright laws in most countries are in a constant state of change. If you are outside the United States, check the laws of your country in addition to the terms of this agreement before downloading, copying, displaying, performing, distributing or creating derivative works based on this work or any other Project Gutenberg™ work. The Foundation makes no representations concerning the copyright status of any work in any country outside the United States.

1.E. Unless you have removed all references to Project Gutenberg:

1.E.1. The following sentence, with active links to, or other immediate access to, the full Project Gutenberg™ License must appear prominently whenever any copy of a Project Gutenberg™ work (any work on which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” appears, or with which the phrase “Project Gutenberg” is associated) is accessed, displayed, performed, viewed, copied or distributed:

This eBook is for the use of anyone anywhere in the United States and most other parts of the world at no cost and with almost no restrictions whatsoever. You may copy it, give it away or re-use it under the terms of the Project Gutenberg License included with this eBook or online at <https://www.gutenberg.org> . If you are not located in the United States, you'll have to check the laws of the country where you are located before using this ebook.

1.E.2. If an individual Project Gutenberg™ electronic work is derived from texts not protected by U.S. copyright law (does not contain a notice indicating that it is posted with permission of the copyright holder), the work can be copied and distributed to anyone in the United States without paying any fees or charges. If you are redistributing or providing access to a work with the phrase “Project Gutenberg” associated with or appearing on the work, you must comply either with the requirements of paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 or obtain permission for the use of the work and the Project Gutenberg™ trademark as set forth in paragraphs 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.3. If an individual Project Gutenberg™ electronic work is posted with the permission of the copyright holder, your use and distribution must comply with both paragraphs 1.E.1 through 1.E.7 and any additional terms imposed by the copyright holder. Additional terms will be linked to the Project Gutenberg™ License for all works posted with the permission of the copyright holder found at the beginning of this work.

1.E.4. Do not unlink or detach or remove the full Project Gutenberg™ License terms from this work, or any files containing a part of this work or any other work associated with Project Gutenberg™.

1.E.5. Do not copy, display, perform, distribute or redistribute this electronic work, or any part of this electronic work, without prominently displaying the sentence set forth in paragraph 1.E.1 with active links or immediate access to the full terms of the Project Gutenberg™ License.

1.E.6. You may convert to and distribute this work in any binary, compressed, marked up, nonproprietary or proprietary form, including any word processing or hypertext form. However, if you provide access to or distribute copies of a Project Gutenberg™ work in a format other than “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other format used in the official version posted on the official Project Gutenberg™ web site (<https://www.gutenberg.org>), you must, at no additional cost, fee or expense to the user, provide a copy, a means of exporting a copy, or a means of obtaining a copy upon request, of the work in its original “Plain Vanilla ASCII” or other form. Any alternate format must include the full Project Gutenberg™ License as specified in paragraph 1.E.1.

1.E.7. Do not charge a fee for access to, viewing, displaying, performing, copying or distributing any Project Gutenberg™ works unless you comply with paragraph 1.E.8 or 1.E.9.

1.E.8. You may charge a reasonable fee for copies of or providing access to or distributing Project Gutenberg™ electronic works provided that

- You pay a royalty fee of 20% of the gross profits you derive from the use of Project Gutenberg™ works calculated using the method you already use to calculate your applicable taxes. The fee is owed to the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, but he has agreed to donate royalties under this paragraph to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation. Royalty payments must be paid within 60 days following each date on which you prepare (or are legally required to prepare) your periodic tax returns. Royalty payments should be clearly marked as such and sent to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation at the address specified in Section 4, “Information about donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation.”
- You provide a full refund of any money paid by a user who notifies you in writing (or by e-mail) within 30 days of receipt that s/he does not agree to the terms of the full Project Gutenberg™ License. You must require such a user to return or destroy all copies of the works possessed in a physical medium and discontinue all use of and all access to other copies of Project Gutenberg™ works.
- You provide, in accordance with paragraph 1.F.3, a full refund of any money paid for a work or a replacement copy, if a defect in the electronic work is discovered and reported to you within 90 days of receipt of the work.
- You comply with all other terms of this agreement for free distribution of Project Gutenberg™ works.

1.E.9. If you wish to charge a fee or distribute a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work or group of works on different terms than are set forth in this agreement, you must obtain permission in writing from both the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and The Project Gutenberg Trademark LLC, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark. Contact the Foundation as set forth in Section 3. below.

1.F.

1.F.1. Project Gutenberg volunteers and employees expend considerable effort to identify, do copyright research on, transcribe and proofread works not protected by U.S. copyright law in creating the Project Gutenberg™ collection. Despite these efforts, Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, and the medium on which they may be stored, may contain “Defects,” such as, but not limited to, incomplete, inaccurate or corrupt data, transcription errors, a copyright or other intellectual property infringement, a defective or damaged disk or other medium, a computer virus, or computer codes that damage or cannot be read by your equipment.

1.F.2. LIMITED WARRANTY, DISCLAIMER OF DAMAGES – Except for the “Right of Replacement or Refund” described in paragraph 1.F.3, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, the owner of the Project Gutenberg™ trademark, and any other party distributing a Project Gutenberg™ electronic work under this agreement, disclaim all liability to you for damages, costs and expenses, including legal fees. YOU AGREE THAT YOU HAVE NO REMEDIES FOR NEGLIGENCE, STRICT LIABILITY, BREACH OF WARRANTY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT EXCEPT THOSE PROVIDED IN PARAGRAPH 1.F.3. YOU AGREE THAT THE FOUNDATION, THE TRADEMARK OWNER, AND ANY DISTRIBUTOR UNDER THIS AGREEMENT WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ACTUAL, DIRECT, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, PUNITIVE OR INCIDENTAL DAMAGES EVEN IF YOU GIVE NOTICE OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGE.

1.F.3. LIMITED RIGHT OF REPLACEMENT OR REFUND – If you discover a defect in this electronic work within 90 days of receiving it, you can receive a refund of the money (if any) you paid for it by sending a written explanation to the person you received the work from. If you received the work on a physical medium, you must return the medium with your written explanation. The person or entity that provided you with the defective work may elect to provide a replacement copy in lieu of a refund. If you received the work electronically, the person or entity providing it to you may choose to give you a second opportunity to receive the work electronically in lieu of a refund. If the second copy is also defective, you may demand a refund in writing without further opportunities to fix the problem.

1.F.4. Except for the limited right of replacement or refund set forth in paragraph 1.F.3, this work is provided to you ‘AS-IS,’ WITH NO OTHER WARRANTIES OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR ANY PUR-

POSE.

1.F.5. Some states do not allow disclaimers of certain implied warranties or the exclusion or limitation of certain types of damages. If any disclaimer or limitation set forth in this agreement violates the law of the state applicable to this agreement, the agreement shall be interpreted to make the maximum disclaimer or limitation permitted by the applicable state law. The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of this agreement shall not void the remaining provisions.

1.F.6. INDEMNITY – You agree to indemnify and hold the Foundation, the trademark owner, any agent or employee of the Foundation, anyone providing copies of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works in accordance with this agreement, and any volunteers associated with the production, promotion and distribution of Project Gutenberg™ electronic works, harmless from all liability, costs and expenses, including legal fees, that arise directly or indirectly from any of the following which you do or cause to occur: (a) distribution of this or any Project Gutenberg™ work, (b) alteration, modification, or additions or deletions to any Project Gutenberg™ work, and (c) any Defect you cause.

Section 2. Information about the Mission of Project Gutenberg™

Project Gutenberg™ is synonymous with the free distribution of electronic works in formats readable by the widest variety of computers including obsolete, old, middle-aged and new computers. It exists because of the efforts of hundreds of volunteers and donations from people in all walks of life.

Volunteers and financial support to provide volunteers with the assistance they need, is critical to reaching Project Gutenberg™'s goals and ensuring that the Project Gutenberg™ collection will remain freely available for generations to come. In 2001, the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation was created to provide a secure and permanent future for Project Gutenberg™ and future generations. To learn more about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation and how your efforts and donations can help, see Sections 3 and 4 and the Foundation web page at <https://www.pgla.org> .

Section 3. Information about the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

The Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation is a non profit 501(c)(3) educational corporation organized under the laws of the state of Mississippi and granted tax exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Foundation's EIN or federal tax identification number is 64-6221541. Contributions to the Project

Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation are tax deductible to the full extent permitted by U.S. federal laws and your state's laws.

The Foundation's principal office is in Fairbanks, Alaska, with the mailing address: PO Box 750175, Fairbanks, AK 99775, but its volunteers and employees are scattered throughout numerous locations. Its business office is located at 809 North 1500 West, Salt Lake City, UT 84116, (801) 596-1887, email business@pglaf.org. Email contact links and up to date contact information can be found at the Foundation's web site and official page at www.gutenberg.org/contact

Section 4. Information about Donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation

Project Gutenberg™ depends upon and cannot survive without wide spread public support and donations to carry out its mission of increasing the number of public domain and licensed works that can be freely distributed in machine readable form accessible by the widest array of equipment including outdated equipment. Many small donations ($1 to $5,000) are particularly important to maintaining tax exempt status with the IRS.

The Foundation is committed to complying with the laws regulating charities and charitable donations in all 50 states of the United States. Compliance requirements are not uniform and it takes a considerable effort, much paperwork and many fees to meet and keep up with these requirements. We do not solicit donations in locations where we have not received written confirmation of compliance. To SEND DONATIONS or determine the status of compliance for any particular state visit <https://www.gutenberg.org/donate>

While we cannot and do not solicit contributions from states where we have not met the solicitation requirements, we know of no prohibition against accepting unsolicited donations from donors in such states who approach us with offers to donate.

International donations are gratefully accepted, but we cannot make any statements concerning tax treatment of donations received from outside the United States. U.S. laws alone swamp our small staff.

Please check the Project Gutenberg Web pages for current donation methods and addresses. Donations are accepted in a number of other ways including checks, online payments and credit card donations. To donate, please visit: <https://www.gutenberg.org/donate>

Section 5. General Information About Project Gutenberg™ electronic works.

Professor Michael S. Hart was the originator of the Project Gutenberg™ concept of a library of electronic works that could be freely shared with anyone. For thirty years, he produced and distributed Project Gutenberg™ eBooks with only a loose network of volunteer support.

Project Gutenberg™ eBooks are often created from several printed editions, all of which are confirmed as not protected by copyright in the U.S. unless a copyright notice is included. Thus, we do not necessarily keep eBooks in compliance with any particular paper edition.

Most people start at our Web site which has the main PG search facility:

<https://www.gutenberg.org>

This Web site includes information about Project Gutenberg™, including how to make donations to the Project Gutenberg Literary Archive Foundation, how to help produce our new eBooks, and how to subscribe to our email newsletter to hear about new eBooks.
